

Handwritten text in a circular arrangement, likely a decorative border or a circular inscription. The text is written in a cursive script, possibly a historical or regional form of a language. The words are arranged in a circle, with some characters appearing to be stylized or decorative. The text is written in black ink on a white background.